Forums have been included on the site to provide a place for feedback by both the reader and the authors regarding the downloads and tutorials available here. Suggestions for tutorials you would like to see could be posted as well. These forums are not intended to be a place for 'anything you can think of about Ulead software, please solve my problem' type conversations. There are plenty of forums already available on the web where these type of question/answer sessions can be held. Check the links section. This is just a general guideline. The forums are not moderated and lightning will not strike if a conversation happens to stray off topic. Please, try to keep the topics relevant to the forum.
